“SHARING THE JOURNEY”

August/September 2012

How's Your “Do”?

I appreciate a quote found in the book “Shaped by God's Heart” by Milfred Minatrea. He refers back many years to Antoine de Saint-Exupéry who wrote in the early twentieth century. “If you want to build a ship, don't drum up the men to gather wood, divide the work, and give orders. Instead, teach them to yearn for the vast and endless sea.” Of course, his reference wasn't particularly to shipbuilding but to almost any task that benefits from copious amounts of passion in hearts of committed adventurers. It is especially relevant to adventurous Christ-followers seeking to obediently build up the body of Christ and minister in their own mission fields.

For many generations the attitude of most western-world Christians, that is those who have migrated out of old Christianized European countries to the New World, have increasingly developed a philosophy of religion that emphasizes the building of beautiful structures with all the conveniences available to them. For obvious reasons this has generated an institutional approach. Day-to-day ministry is defined as that which takes place inside the building for the good and comfort of the members with many and varied programs designed exclusively for Christians. Heavy emphasis is placed on the social aspect of community with many friendly gatherings and informative programs that seek to “gather wood, divide the work, and give orders.” There is no limit to food, fellowship, and sharing among the brethren. There are special trips to fun and interesting places, motivational speakers, wonderful music, and semi-annual rallies that are hoped to challenge and reinvigorate insiders who have become complacent.

The unfortunate side to all of this is that in the end, for all of the good intentions, things remain boringly the same resulting in alarming reports of how dead or dying and ineffective our churches have become at spreading the Good News and transforming lives through Christ.

Many older churches with their busy schedules of non-stop programs are in decline, and unless there is a major rethinking of what her purpose is, the church will continue to lose her impact and influence on the secular world that surrounds. As churches “circle the wagons” and work harder to protect themselves from contamination and change from outsiders and further their own comfort and Christian culture, those in deepest need of rescue and compassion will likely not find help from the one source that can help them most.

Every church I have ever been associated with would state that their purpose has something to do with sharing the Gospel with the lost and expanding the kingdom of God on earth. Though not always written out as a mission or vision statement, a high priority is that they covenant to love and care for one another. Obedience to the will and purpose of God is equally important, and a strong allegiance to the Holy Scriptures is an integral part of the whole mix. There is usually a strong and proud conviction in the air when they begin to talk about God's house being a house of prayer. These traits are healthy and biblically sound. However, if we want to be honest about our purpose it is more telling to take an inventory of our actions. The man who says his greatest priority is his family and yet never seems to find time to interact with his children or grow in his commitment to his wife is desperately off course. A business that claims to place the customer number one and yet does all it can to take money from the buyer while offering an inferior product with poor customer support will not be around for the duration.

Likewise, a church may make any number of spiritually sound statements and even fight to defend such opinions, but if a weekly inventory points out that there has been little or no contact with the community in which we live, total prayer offered in the “prayer house” can be counted in minutes, and activities and expenditures are almost entirely for the benefit and comfort of our members, then we should either restate our purpose so it agrees with our reality or redirect our efforts to agree with our statements. It was a wise old sage who pointed out that “words are cheap.” There are those in our congregations who have a passion for what is truly the mission at the heart of God. Let's not waste our time, energy, and money drumming up men and women to prop up self-serving programs and activities, nit picking the details of caring for our own ease and prosperity, and barking orders. Instead, let's remind one another that Jesus placed the emphasis on “go and make disciples”. We are to guide these adventurers to fan into flame the yearning passion for the “vast and endless sea” of wandering sheep without a shepherd. Let's make our “do” match our “say.”

"BODY LIFE" GATHERING AUGUST 26 AT 12:30 P.M.

Body Life is a coming together of our congregation in conjunction with the work of our Pastor and Transition Team for the purpose of fellowship, worship, prayer, and study. These gatherings are important opportunities in the course of our ministry, because out of these special times we learn more about ourselves and how our church fits uniquely into God's plan and purpose. A light lunch will be provided, so you need bring nothing other than a willingness to share your thoughts and hopes regarding the life of our church. We will be encouraged as we gain insight and are challenged in our spiritual walk with Christ. Help us get the word out!

FORK MOUNTAIN REST HOME "FOURTH OF JULY" CELEBRATION

Under the direction of Betty Conner, an employee of Fork Mountain Rest Home, the residents decided to have a Yard Sale to raise money for a Kentucky Fried Chicken dinner on July 4th.

Preparations were made for advertising and signs were made by Ricky and Sue Seay. People and churches in the community were asked to donate articles to sell and for monetary donations. The response was just great and the yard sale was a huge success!. Special thanks goes to Pauline Martin who donated lots of items and stayed all day to help.

The Fourth of July was special and we were reminded how blessed we are as a nation to be able to celebrate our freedom. We started the day with lots of music and singing, especially the Patriotic Songs. We also recited The Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag, the Bible and the Christian Flag.

Dinner was served at 4:00 PM. We all enjoyed the extra crispy Kentucky Fried Chicken, mashed potatoes w/gravy, cold slaw, green beans (which were raised by Ivan Mason in his garden at the home). Ivan is a resident at FMRH. We also had biscuits and Betty Conner made banana pudding for desert. Drinks were provided by Jerry & Gaye Bryant.

After the meal, games were played with the residents led by Betty Conner. Prizes were awarded to the winners. It was a wonderful Fourth of July for the residents with many blessings. Oak Level Baptist Church has two resident members - Lillian Forbes and Diane Chitwood. Resident Golden Stone is the Mother of Elmer Stone. Thank you church members and the community for helping us at Fork Mountain have such a good time. The Lord has really blessed us all. Kay Harley & Betty Conner

shoes for shannon

They have blisters on their heels. Their shoes are too small, they wear them without socks. When a Virginia Baptist volunteer team met 6 year old Gloria at Standing Rock Reservation, she had beautiful shoes: shiny, bright yellow, high-top sneakers with red laces. But Gloria couldn't attend their VBS every day because she had to share those shoes with her sister. The team became determined to take enough shoes for every child on the reservation. Thanks to the generosity of Virginia Baptists, last summer's team gave away almost 2,000 pairs of shoes! At Little Eagle, the team met Shannon Little Dog, a great big guy who came every day to the community center with only socks on his feet. H needed the one size of shoes they didn't have - size 17. They searched every store within 50 miles of the reservation and prayed that God would provide. And God did!! They found one pair of size 17 Nike shoes on sale! Shannon was overwhelmed and exclaimed, "I haven't had a pair of shoes that fit me in 10 years."

MEDIA

EXPLOITATION

Media Exploitation of children and families is the use of common media like television, video games, computers, music movies and magazines to convey negative information or images. This is a missional issue because overexposure to negative and violent messages can hinder the development and learning abilities of language skills. It can also cause loss of creative play, encourage poor eating habits, and reduce relationships with family members and friends.

God Moments:

— serving Bland County, VA and Beyond

Doing God's work silently and around Bland County, VA is how Dee Dee Hoosier describes the work she directs at The Bland Ministry Center. Their "quiet work" speaks volumes to thousands of families who have been served by this ministry over the years. Tough economic times have taken the center from providing food boxes to 5 families a week to at least 79 a week, which is considered a slow week. The food pantry isn't the only ministry of the center that is seeing increased traffic. The clothes closet helps many to clothe families so they can spend money on items such as food and medicine. In w011, their dental ministry also saw increases as 361 patients were served by 10 dental volunteers who make smiles a reality. There's no doubt that there's a loud message about God's love expressed through Virginia Baptists that is quietly, faithfully working through The Bland Ministry Center
